Opequon Bridge Completed

The work of putting up the handsome steel bridge over the Opequon on the Berryville Turnpike was completed last week, and now only the "filling in" at the ends of the structure is necessary to make it ready for travel.

The Turnpike Company has done a nice piece of work in erecting the bridge, for it will add materially to the value of the road, as well as greatly enhancing the opportunity for crossing the Opequon in time of high water.

The bridge, which is constructed of steel, rests on two heavy abutments of cement, and is rigidly constructed and braced. It will withstand the strain of the heavy travel over this road with ease, and is of sufficient width to allow easy passing of teams.

The fills at each end will be well constructed of earth, with macadam top, making the fills of the same substantial character as the main body of the turnpike.

While nothing has been said about such a plan, it seems to us that some form of celebration should be arranged for the day that the bridge is finally thrown open to travel.

To Obliterate Garlic From Milk

The following is said by dairymen to be an excellent method of obliterating the taste of garlic (wild onion) from milk and butter:

Before straining the milk, place three or four tablespoonsful of boiling hot water in the receptacle, and then strain the milk upon it.

It is said that the hot water throws off all of the odor and taste of the garlic, so that it cannot be noticed in either the milk or butter.

Deeds Recorded.

A deed was admitted to record this morning conveying from Capt. W. P. Carter to Mr. H. P. Mitchell the handsome estate near Boyce, known as "The Glen."

Mr. H. J. Stickles has sold his two cottages on East Main-street to Mr. Ellis Jackson and Mrs. Lucy Hart, respectively. The deeds to the two pieces of property were admitted to record this week.
